2018 Zinfandel Dry Creek Valley

PLATINUM SERIES

The Dry Creek appellation is nearly synonymous with Zinfandel and renowned for yielding the classic brambly, berry-like character and spice that define California's heritage grape. Jammy, rich and ripe, it's deliciously true to its origins with a core of blackberry jam and briar interwoven. This Zinfandel spent 4 months on French Oak chips with a medium toast.

Windsor Recommends

Distinct in style and taste, this fruit-forward Zinfandel makes an impressive host or hostess gift when your friends invite you to dinner. Smooth and jammy on the palate, it is a perfect complement to dishes like slow-roasted leg of lamb, braised beef short ribs and Cioppino.

This small, idyllic sub-region of Sonoma County, about an hour north of the Golden Gate Bridge, has been growing wine since about the time of the Gold Rush. The district boasts well-drained soils and an ideal balance of coastal and inland influences for ripening Zinfandel to perfection. It's also a highly-regarded home for Bordeaux varieties, Rhone varieties and Sauvignon Blanc.
